GIVE and PUT

Don't say: Give the vegetables into the fridge.

Say: Put the vegetables into the fridge.

Don't say: I have put the file to Cathy.

Say: I have given the file to Cathy.

!We use give when we want to say that somebody gives something to somebody, whereas we say put when we want to say that we put something somewhere.

RECIPE – CURRY

The other day my best friend Mary gave me this recipe for the loveliest curry in the world. The secret tip which makes this recipe so gorgeous is putting fresh ginger root into it and then putting it into the fridge for at least two hours. When I served it in the evening my husband gave me a loving smile and started eating. I gave a call to Mary, put my feet up and watched my darling eating the curry. After he had finished he put my favourite record on and gave his best regards to Mary. What a great night!! Of course, that next day I gave Mary full details of the previous night.☺
